My First Book of Chinese Calligraphy

Zhihong He and Guillaume Olive

My First Book of Chinese Calligraphy is a fun and engaging way for young readers to learn about China and one of China's most recognizable arts. The book joins Mimi, an 8-year-old as she takes the first steps towards learning this magical art. Dive in and explore:

- * How Chinese words first began, thousands of years ago
- * How to draw the 8 strokes; with them, you can write anything
- * What "radicals" are...and how to unlock their secrets
- * How to use the brush, the paper and ink to enjoy writing in Chinese

The included interactive CD-ROM enables learners to play creative games to see, hear and try Chinese writing; listen to the pronunciation of the Chinese characters; observe calligraphers in action and print the characters to create practice pages.

Zhihong He graduated from Beijing Academy of Fine Arts, where she studied traditional Chinese painting. She has authored and/or illustrated many children's books, including Long-Long's New Year for which she won the Peter Pan Award. She has also won the Saint-Exupery Prize.

Guillaume Olive is a Sinologist who spent many years in China. He is the author of several translations of Chinese folkloric tales, ancient poems and classic novels, as well as children's books published in his native France. He has received many prizes for his work, including the Nuit du Livre award and Saint-Exupery Prize.

Chinese Language and Discourse

An International and Interdisciplinary Journal

Editors: K. K. Luke, Hongyin Tao and Li Wei

Nanyang Technological University/University of Hong Kong / University of California, Los Angeles / University of London
Review Editor: Li Wei University of London

A peer reviewed journal which seeks to publish original work on Chinese and related languages, with a focus on current topics in Chinese discourse studies. The notion of discourse is a broad one, emphasizing an empirical orientation and encompassing such linguistic fields as language and society, language and culture, language and social interaction, discourse and grammar, communication studies, and contact linguistics. Special emphasis is placed on systematic documentation of Chinese usage patterns and methodological innovations in explaining Chinese and related languages from a wide range of functionalistic perspectives, including, but not limited to, those of Conversation Analysis, sociolinguistics, corpus linguistics, grammaticalization, cognitive linguistics, typological and comparative studies.

The journal also publishes review articles as well as discussion topics. Exchanges of research views between authors and readers are also encouraged.

ISSN: 1877-7031 (print) / 1877-8798 (electronic)
